Reflection: allows me to inspect and access all information of a class during runtime, like class name and its properties, methods, and constructors.

Protected internal:

Access modifier that is available in two cases: in the same assembly and in derived classes, even in another assembly, and one of the conditions must happen.

Private protected:

Access modifier that is available in two cases: in the same assembly and in derived classes, and both conditions must happen.